Officers expressed similar opinions. Austrians are much less complimentary. American marines were first to land to help to restore order. German followed. Both landed without any political instructions from their respective governments. All vessels in the harbor, except those of Austria and Greece, landed men. A famine is apprehended; also an epidemic because of unburied dead. The offices of the Ottoman bank and the Credit Lyonnais escaped destruction. Arabi Pasha appropriated £25,000 from the treasury of the custom house before leaving. According to accounts of persons who remain in the city, bands of murderers, during and after the bombardment, forced their way into almost every house. Plundering and burning began on the 12th. Scarcely any European dwelling was spared. It appears large stores of petroleum were sent to Alexandria a week before the bombardment specially to set fire to the city.

ALEXANDRIA, July 15 10 p. m. A visit to the town shows many houses which were intact are to-day in ashes, among them the British consulate. An eye witness relates that soldiers and others who were plundering houses heaped up bedding saturated with petroleum and then set them on fire. To-day there were no fresh fires, but the ruins are tumbling and encumbering the streets. Alexandria is still like a city of the dead though a few more Greeks are visible on the streets. Africans, Germans, Russians and Greeks, who came ashore from their respective ships of war, act as though indifferent spectators. While the British occupy the city and bastions and are stationed at the gates the French and Italians have thus far refused to land. The sister of the khedive's wife died from premature child-birth during the bombardment.

MALTA, July 15.—It is semi-officially stated that Spain is greatly preoccupied on the subject of the Suez canal. The American men-of-war Portsmouth and Saratoga passed Gibraltar to-day for Genoa.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 15.—The dragomans of six powers to-day invited the porte to send troops to Egypt.

LONDON, July 15.—A Port Said special says: The Egyptian minister of war has issued a circular announcing that a military government has been instituted. All revenues have been embargoed for military purposes. The British ships are at the entrance to the Suez canal, ready to enter at a moment's notice from home.

Advices from Cairo state that sanguinary rioting prevails there, despite endeavors of authorities to maintain order. The German consul is preparing to leave with his countrymen. The Italian consul advises Italians to go to Osmalia.

ALEXANDRIA, July 15.—All available marines and sailors, with Gatling and Nordenfeld guns, are now ashore. They have taken fourteen days' rations with them. Four hundred men, under Lord Charles Beresford, act as police. Arabi Pasha is believed to be encamped within twenty miles of Alexandria, with a reduced and disaffected army. No Arab soldiers in Alexandria are allowed to carry arms. Four who refused to give them up were shot. Altogether Alexandria presents such a spectacle as is seldom seen in history. Under the most favorable circumstances twenty years cannot restore it to its former state.

State News.

DENVER, July 15.—A gang of burglars worked the house of Mr. M. A. Root, the stationer, and worked it in a manner which proves them to be old hands at the business. Mr. Root's family being absent in the mountains, he was alone in the house. Sometime last night he awoke and became conscious that there was some one in his room. As he rose up in bed he was struck three heavy blows over the head, rendering him unconscious. On coming to his senses he found his hands and arms tightly bound, his feet tied and a gag in his mouth. For a long time he was unable to make a motion, but finally released himself from the bed to which he had been tied, though he was unable to disengage himself from the cords which confined his limbs. In this condition he managed to roll off the bed and make his way to the head of the stairs. In endeavoring to get down stairs he fell heavily, severely straining his back. He was however able to make his way to the rear of the house, where other parties reside, and by making a noise attracted the attention of the people and was released from his bonds. On examination it was found the burglars had taken all the money he had in his pockets, some $60, and his watch and chain. The police have been notified and are on the track of the thieves with but little hope of capturing them. They are evidently experts at the business.

J. B. Cunningham, a real estate broker here, skipped out a day or two since. A confiding community mourn his loss.

A Buena Vista special says: The body of August Talbot, a miner and prospector, was found in Cottonwood gulch to-day. He had been subject to fits. The coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental drowning.

Bright's Resignation.

LONDON, July 15.—In the house of commons this afternoon Chamberlain, president of the board of trade, confirmed the rumor that John Bright has resigned the chancellorship of the duchy of Lancaster.

The Pall Mall Gazette says Bright's resignation is not likely to be followed by that of any of his colleagues.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Serious Disagreement on the River and Harbor Bill.

Efforts of the War Department to Improve Arizona Affairs.

Other Matters of Interest at the National Capital.

RECENT ARMY CHANGES.

CHICAGO, July 15.—A special from Washington says: The transfer of General Howard from the command of West Point to the department of the Platte has been a good deal commented on in military circles. The occasion for the transfer, however, seems to be the fact that affairs in Arizona have been in very bad condition the past year, and the department has come to the conclusion to make an improvement. Secretary Lincoln said to-day he had determined to stay Apache raids and disorders in that territory and send an experienced and energetic officer to do the duty. In looking around for an officer it was found that General Howard was the only one available, and the first intention was to send him to Arizona, but on considering it it was thought best to order General Crook and let General Howard take Crook's place in command of the department of the Platte with headquarters at Omaha. The changes would not have been made but for the condition of affairs in Arizona. General Howard's transfer to the department of the Platte was absolutely necessary after it had been decided to send Crook to Arizona, he being the only officer of high rank available. Secretary Lincoln said it would be necessary to make a change in the commandant of cadets at West Point, as Col. Lazelle, the present commandant, had just been promoted to be lieutenant-colonel, and as the colonel of his regiment was unfit for duty, it would be necessary for Col. Lazelle, the next ranking officer, to take command.

AMERICAN INTER-OCEANIC CANAL.

WASHINGTON, July 15. Chairman Page, of the commerce committee, to-day received the following dispatch from the board of trade of San Francisco, and will have it read to the house:

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.

To Hon. B. F. Page:

England's action in Egypt impresses upon us the necessity for an American inter-oceanic canal, under American control. We pray congress to note the warning and act promptly.

SMALL VS. TILLMAN.

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The republican caucus committee on order of business did not meet again to-day, as was contemplated, Mr. Robeson being absent. It is generally understood, however, that the South Carolina election case of Small vs. Tillman will be taken up on Tuesday, providing a quorum of republican and independent members are present. Sergeant-at-Arms Hooker says he has assurance that there will be 147 republicans, greenbackers and independent members in their seats when the house assembles Tuesday next.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

Anthony introduced a bill repealing so much of the army bill as relates to Sherman and Sheridan. Referred.

On motion of VanWyck, the resolution was taken up directing the secretary of the interior to withhold action on payment of double pension to General Ward Burnett until the president shall act upon the bill passed yesterday, which contains a prohibitory payment of double pensions.

Windom offered a resolution calling on the president for copies of the declaration of Edward Lytton, Bulwer and Clayton, upon the ratification of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and for any other documents referred to in instructions of Secretary Frelinghuysen to Minister Lowell, dated the eighth of May, 1882. Adopted.

An amendment was offered by Beck to the pension bill, requiring the commissioner of pensions once in each year to cause a list of pensioners and applicants for pensions for each county in the United States to be made out and published in at least one newspaper in each county. He contended the adoption of the amendment would prevent to a great measure the perpetration of fraud upon the pension office. No honest soldier would object to his name being published in a list of men who had fought for their country in the hour of need. Objection would only come from men who were dishonestly receiving pensions, and he instanced as such a man a citizen of Louisville, who had been a soldier but lost an arm in a disreputable brawl, and was now receiving a pension for that disability. No honest pensioner could be hurt by his amendment.

Plumb opposed the amendment and contended that the pension roll on the whole represented men who were entitled to pensions. He did not deny there was some fraud under the pension laws, but he asserted it was practically impossible to construct a pension list without frauds creeping in. The war had cost $6,000,000,000. It had been a big job; and, thank God, it had been well done, and if it cost six billions to support the men who had carried the flag, it would be money well spent as long as one of these veterans remained to draw his emaciated body through the country which he had helped to keep intact.

Beck agreed in this view, but stated that there would always be foisted upon the pension roll men who claimed to have been soldiers, but who had never served in the army or navy.

Logan opposed the amendment, and claimed that the bill as reported from the committee on pensions threw a safeguard around the pensions office. He disliked this annual attack upon the pensions list and these charges of fraud.

The amendment was finally ruled out upon a point of order raised by Anthony.

The bill then passed on motion of McMillan.

The senate insisted upon its amendments to the river and harbor appropriation bill and a conference committee was ordered, consisting of Senators McMillan, Jones, of Nevada, and Ransom, and the senate at 4:50 adjourned.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

Cannon, from the committee of conference on the legislative appropriation bill, reported disagreement. After discussion the house voted to insist on disagreement with the senate and ask further conference. Cannon, Hiscock and Robeson were appointed committee on the legislative bill, and Hiscock, Robeson and Cox on the deficiency bill.

The question of inequalities of salaries of senate and house employes was referred to the civil service reform committee, providing no salaries be increased.

The house went into committee on senate amendments of the river and harbor bill. The first seventeen amendments were non-concurred in.

WASHINGTON NOTES.

The president nominated S. S. Benedict, of Kansas, Indian inspector.

The president appointed James M. Haworth, of Kansas, inspector of Indian schools.

The tobacco association will try to get the tax on tobacco reduced to 8 cents, cigars to $2.50, and cigarettes to 50 cents.

The house committee on foreign affairs failed to get a quorum this morning to consider Kasson's report of the Nicaragua canal, but will take up the matter again Monday.

The house committee on commerce reported favorably to-day a bill to authorize the Oregon Pacific Railway company to construct one or more bridges across the Willamette river.

One of the grand jurors said to a reporter that if he had been a member of the jury he would have voted to indict Kellogg. The jury didn't believe Bliss would have done more in defense of Kellogg if he had been employed on that side.

Colorado Pool.

CHICAGO, July 15.—The Times has the following. The Colorado pool has become an accomplished fact. To-day, Potter, of the Burlington road, Wheeler, of the A., T. & S. F., and Clark, of the U. P., agreed upon the conditions of the pooling arrangement and divided Denver traffic thus: U. P., 51 per cent.; Burlington, 30; A., T. & S. F., 19. The large percentage to the U. P. is for its two Denver lines, from Omaha and Kansas City; the smallness of the A., T. & S. F. allotment is because of its having a line to Denver only over the tracks of the D. & R. G. The Burlington besides receiving 30 per cent. for its Denver line receives on its Omaha and Kansas City lines a considerable proportion of the percentage allotted to the Union Pacific and Atchison roads, swelling its total share of Colorado business to at least 50 per cent. of the whole. Probably the Denver & Rio Grande will be entitled to a small proportion of the percentage accepted by the Atchison company, besides its pro rata share of the through rate. It is understood a line may upon nine days' notice withdraw from the pool, and each company receives the privilege of presenting claim for increase of percentage of traffic. The memorandum also provides for the maintenance of an agreed schedule of rates on all lines to be pooled. Some minor conditions are yet to be agreed on. This action puts a quietus on all speculation as to the chances of a war of rates between the great trunk lines west of the Missouri river.

Mrs. Lincoln Very Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 15. Mrs. Abraham Lincoln is lying dangerously ill at her sister's, Mrs. E. W. Edwards, in this city. She has been perceptibly sinking. Physicians have little hope that she will be able to recover. For the past week she has been very feeble, but to-night paralytic symptoms became manifest. Her death at any time would not be surprising.

Trotting at Chicago.

CHICAGO, July 15.—At the opening day of the summer trotting meeting the track was in good condition, weather warm and cloudy, attendance fair. The first race was stake for colts and fillies, three years old and under, net value to winner, $1,000. Eva, the favorite, was unsettled by an unavoidable collision with Code in the first heat.

Time, 2:31½, 2:33, 2:31.

Second race stake for colts and fillies, four years old and under, net value $1,350. The race created the most intense excitement, on account of the close finishes and extraordinary character of the race, which is pronounced the finest on record for young things. After the third heat Budd Doble drove Jay Eye See, and Q. A. Hickok drove Bronze. In the last heat the word was given with Jay Eye See on a break, and he never thoroughly settled to work throughout the heat.

Destructive Storm.

BISMARCK, D. T., July 15.—News is received that a terrific storm of wind, rain and hail swept the fertile and prosperous sections of the Black Hills known as Spearfish and Red Water. Two thousand acres of magnificent grain, nearly ready to harvest, were destroyed, and a section of country four miles wide and thirty long was devastated. No loss of life is reported, but may be expected.

EL PASO'S EXHIBIT.

The Importance of Having the County Represented at the Exposition.

What Products Can be Exhibited That Will Be a Credit to the County.

Interviews With Various Men in Reference to the Matter.

The citizens of Colorado Springs and El Paso county are beginning to realize that it is of vital importance that El Paso county should be properly represented at the Denver Exposition. When the fact was made known that El Paso county was the only county in the state that had not applied for space at the exposition, the residents realized that something should be done. At the board of trade meeting on Tuesday night the matter was first brought up and a committee was appointed to properly consider the question and see whether El Paso county could make a creditable exhibit at the mining exposition. As many know, our county is not a mineral one, and although we cannot make as good a showing as other counties in the state, in this respect, we can make other exhibits that will command much attention and prove to a certainty that our county has as valuable industries as many of the others. Other counties in the state have sneered at us in consequence of our seeming negligence as to the importance of the mining exposition, when other counties in the state have acted promptly, held meetings and appointed committees to see that proper exhibitions were made, and the county commissioners have made appropriations to defray the expense of representation at the exposition.

To-morrow the board of commissioners of El Paso county will meet, and it is but right that this board, while in session, should make an appropriation that would give one of the representative counties in the state a fair showing at the exposition. But few counties, if any, in the state can show a better financial standing than El Paso, and the commissioners should take pride in showing to the people that they could make an appropriation without encumbering the tax payers. The county is out of debt, with a handsome balance in the hands of the treasurer, and what more could be asked.

In regard to the question as to what kind of an exhibit El Paso county could make, a reporter of the GAZETTE yesterday took occasion to ascertain by interviews with various persons. Through these interviews the reporter became convinced that El Paso county could not only make a creditable but a very valuable exhibit at the exposition and one of which it need not be at all ashamed.

WOOL PRODUCT.

In conversation with Mr. Joseph Sharrett, one of the representative wool growers of El Paso county, the reporter learned some facts in regard to wool that should be made known at the exposition. In quality of wool produced El Paso county stands without a rival in the state, while in quantity it stands but second. During the past two years the quantity has been decreased by the removal of sheep from the state and drive to both Wyoming and Kansas. While it is but fair to acknowledge the number of sheep in the county has been diminished, it is at the same time but right to claim that the quality of wool has improved. For no season in many years have our wool-producers placed on the market a better quality of wool than during the season just passed. Records will show that not less than 500,000 pounds of wool have been or will be shipped from El Paso county this year. Had the question of a fleece exhibition at the Denver exposition been agitated sooner, every wool-grower in the county would have been only too glad to have selected choice clips for the exposition. As it is, many of them have disposed of their wool and will not be able to do so. Several of those who have not yet sold their wool have promised to select fleeces and place them on exhibition. It is to be regretted that all of the representative wool-growers cannot be called upon, but the lateness of the season will account for the limited exhibit.

COAL EXHIBIT.

Ex-Mayor France was called upon by the reporter and questioned as to the coal product of El Paso county. He stated that he was unprepared to give any reliable statistics. He estimated the output of the Franc-ville banks would not fall short of 100 tons per day. Mr. France seemed confident that the county could and would make a creditable exhibit of coal at the exposition.

PLASTER PARIS.

Mr. G. H. Stewart, manager of the Colorado Springs Plaster company, was interviewed. He stated that he had made application for space at the exposition and intended making an exhibit whether the county did so or not. The plaster mill under the control of the company now had a capacity equal to double the amount used in the state, while the quality would compare favorably with any manufactured in America. Preparations had been made to place on exhibition some handsome gypsum ornaments, also others produced from plaster manufactured in the mill at Colorado City. Mr. Stewart seemed to think that the Plaster Paris company could make an exhibit that would be both valuable and important at the Denver exposition.

BRICK EXHIBIT.

While the reporter was unable to procure an estimate of the brick manufactured in the county, he, however, learned that the quality of the brick manufactured was better than any in the state. There are now in operation two large brick yards in Colorado Springs, one owned by John Courter and the other by Brewster & Co. Both of these are turning out all they can produce, and the bricks manufactured are well worthy of a place in El Paso county's exhibit. Messrs. Brewster & Co. have already made preparation to place on exhibition some very fine qualities of brick.

BUILDING STONE.

There is no disputing the fact that El Paso county could place on exhibition the most durable and some of the best building stone ever put on the market, and those interested in the Manitou quarries should see that all of the better qualities of stone are exhibited at the exposition. The reporter tried to find some of the gentlemen interested in the quarries at Manitou who would take some pride in placing the products of the quarries on exhibition; but was unable to do so. There is, however, no doubt that splendid specimens of El Paso county building stone will be allotted space at the exposition.

AGRICULTURE AND HORTICULTURE.

As respects both horticultural and agricultural products, El Paso county could make an exhibit that would speak well for the state. Major McAllister, with whom the reporter talked, urged the necessity of the county making as large an exhibit in this respect as possible. He spoke of the necessity of having all vegetables and small fruits shown to our eastern visitors. Although a complete exhibition could not be made at the opening of the exposition, it is very possible, said Mr. McAllister, that it can be made before the close. He more especially referred to the potato crop on the Divide, and suggested that an effort be made to have some of the finest ones placed on exhibition.

MINERAL WATERS.

Nothing will probably better advertise the county at the exposition than the mineral waters at Manitou. In accordance with the suggestion at the meeting of the board of trade Friday night, the committee appointed on that occasion have already perfected arrangements with the Denver & Rio Grande to have at least seventy-five barrels of both the iron and soda water shipped to Denver daily, placed in fountains and given away free of charge. An analysis of the water will also be printed and freely circulated.

STEREOSCOPIC VIEWS.

No person in the state has taken more trouble to secure a better variety of stereoscopic views of the various points of interest than Mr. F. A. Nims, of this city. He has negatives of all the important scenery in Colorado, all of which have been pronounced perfect in every respect. Mr. Nims is now engaged in selecting and framing views for the exposition, and it is doubtful whether a better showing can be made by any artist in the state.

OUR LUMBER.

Mr. Husted, the oldest man in the lumber business in Colorado, was called upon and questioned as to the county's product. As to the amount produced in the county he was unable to give any statistics, but said that it was very important that El Paso county should have its lumber product properly represented. He said that while the supply was exhausted on the Divide, there was an abundance of excellent lumber at Manitou Park, probably the best in the state. In days past, said Mr. Husted, El Paso county furnished the state with the largest amount and the best quality of lumber in the state, and although now we cannot supply the entire demand, we can yet show lumber that in quality cannot be surpassed in Colorado. Mr. Husted urged the importance of having some finely polished specimens of Manitou Park pine placed on exhibition at the exposition.

MISCELLANEOUS EXHIBITS.

As to flowers, specimens of decorated tiles, plaques, etc., there is no reason why we should not make as good a showing as any county in the state, and we have been requested by the committee to invite one and all to contribute something in this line. Mr. Charles Craig, of Messrs. Nye & Craig, has already finished a painting of Pike's Peak, which is destined to command attention. Mr. Craig is now working on several other paintings which will be placed on exhibition in the art gallery.

Inasmuch as the question of having El Paso county fully represented at the exposition has been deferred to a late hour, let all interested in having our exhibit equal to any in the state confer with the committee appointed by the board of trade, Messrs. A. Segendorf, Channing Sweet and M. L. DeCoursey.

Mining Market.

NEW YORK, July 15.—Mining stocks fairly active and irregular. Robinson advanced from $1.35 to $1.40, closing $1.35. Decatur advanced from $1.10 to $1.20, declined to $0.75 and closed at $0.90. South Pacific sold at 13 to 13¾, and Little Chief 53 to 57. Sales for the day, 156,730 shares. Total for the week, $1,[illegible]. Total mining receipts in New York, for the week, from mines, $215,000.

It is important that every producer in this county should unite heartily to decide on having his industry well represented and meet with the board of trade committee on Thursday evening.

The county commissioners meet on Monday and we trust will consider the propriety of making an appropriation to assist our board of trade in securing a good display of fruits and articles of this county. It is a matter which interests the county full as much as the city.

The wool growers will find it greatly to their advantage to co-operate with our board of trade in having their industry well represented. The Colorado wool has been graded too low in the eastern market. This year the quality of wool is exceptionally good and a fine display cannot but be advantageous.

John Bright's resignation from the cabinet does not seem to be any evidence of widespread dissatisfaction with the English policy toward Egypt. But John Bright is a Quaker and has always been opposed to war. In the cabinet he occupied the position of chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. This Duchy comprises a territory nearly corresponding to the county of Lancaster and is separate in law and administration from England. It originated by a royal charter from Edward the III to the Earl of Derby in 1351. It then passed through several hands during the war of the roses and finally became a part of the crown. The government is now vested not in Victoria as the Queen of England but in Victoria as the Duchess of Lancaster. It has a separate court of Westminster, over which the chancellor presides. Recently the chancellor has become a member of the cabinet.

OBSERVANCE OF THE SABBATH

Elsewhere we print the resolutions passed by the ministerial association of this city in respect to the observance of the Sabbath. While there is much difference of opinion as to the manner in which the Sabbath should be observed, the general tone of the last resolution will receive the sanction of most right minded people. The exhortation need not have been limited to those who regard the divine authority. It will be noticed that it claims that the day is to promote the recuperation and improvement of man in his entire nature, physical, intellectual and moral. This is broad ground. The argument against the Christian Sabbath has usually been directed against the Puritan Sabbath, which consisted of the Sabbath as a day simply for the improvement of man's moral nature and forbade many things which were conducive to the recuperation of man, mentally, physically. Considering that Puritan institutions among which the Sabbath observance was a leading one, have produced the most healthful political life, the most intelligent communities, and the sturdiest type of manhood and womanhood, it does not become any sensible person to dismiss them with a sneer as narrow and bigoted. But our ministers in this city have chosen to give a much wider interpretation of the scriptural teaching. It is perhaps much more in sympathy with the historical observance of the Christian Sabbath. Possibly the Friends as a denomination come nearest to that observance of the Sabbath which is urged in the resolutions. From the time Christianity gained a strong hold in any state, there have been civil laws on this question.—Constantine, when converted to Christianity established a Sabbath in which all work was prohibited except agriculture and all legal business except the manumission of slaves. The last fact illustrates one very essential thing in its observance in all ages and countries. The Germanic nations after overthrowing the Roman empire, were soon brought under Christian civilization and compelled a legal observance of the Sabbath. Similar laws were passed in England after the conversion of its people. In this country all our states except Louisiana have laws which recognize the Sabbath. Civil government in all Christian nations have had some laws in regard to its proper observance determined by the conception of the uses of the Sabbath then prevailing and the relation existing between church and state. If the church and state have been united, the laws have been positive in demanding the discharge of religious duties. If the church and state have been independent, then the laws usually left to the individual entire freedom in determining the character of his religious duties. These laws have usually recognized that the day was for some thing, more than purely religious purposes. They all prohibit unnecessary secular pursuits but frequently provide for amusements. After the crusades, when playing cards were introduced into Europe, people had such a passion for using them that the Christian world was forbidden to play cards except on Sundays and saints' days. James I., of England, wrote a book which stated what sports were lawful on the Sabbath after dinner pervice. Except in the early history of this country, the civil laws have never enforced an exclusively religious observance of the day.

At present one of the best arguments for Sabbath rest based on any divine authority, but they recognize the fact that one day's rest in seven, enforced shuts out secular pursuits. They affirm that religious people have the right to worship without being disturbed and compel respect for religious customs. They also rest on the fact, so self-evident in our history, that Sunday observance has a good influence on the morals of the people, and hence on the well being of the republic. These reasons would seem to be sufficient for the continuance of civil laws based on a recognition of the Christian Sabbath. How strict these laws should be is another question which will never be permanently solved but there should be some regulations. But after all the proper observance of the Sabbath must be secured through the pulpit rather than the courts. The ministers will be listened with less prejudice in this discussion and prevent more Sabbath breaking if they can come to teach that the day is for the recuperation and improvement of the entire man and that it may be broken by too exclusive religious exercises as well as by intemperate pleasure or mental exercise though most people will admit we are in less danger from the former than the latter.

LITERARY NOTES

Mr. R. S. Cotes's book, The Religious and Language of India, has reached the sixth edition.

The Kaiser Wilhelm university is the youngest of German universities, has 104 professors, and possesses a library of 200,000 volumes.

Dr. Abbott is in regret that the publication of Hockey's suppressed preface to his Irish Sketch Book is indefinitely postponed.

The influence of Heine and other German authors on the poet Coleridge is the theme of a work by Dr. Alois Brandl, the German writer. It is almost ready for press.

Guercino's Angel which hangs in the chapel at Fano on the Adriatic, and which inspired Mr. Browning's poem, The Guardian Angel, has been photographed by the Browning Society.

Archæologists are much interested in the finding of a fragment of the supposed shield of Achilles at Rome. It will shortly be exhibited in the Museo Capitolino and Father Garrucci is writing a monograph on it.

Mr. Robert Grant, author of the Confessions of a Frivolous Girl and The Little Low Gods on Wheels, has written a burlesque tragedy, The Lunds, satirizing the Wall street speculating mania. It will be published in the August number of The Century Magazine.

Circulating libraries in Australia are now quite numerous. In Sydney and St. Peters burg, Australia, a city just started by the purpose of furnishing the travellers of that city with supplies of daily newspapers and illustrated weeklies. Passengers who hand their copies of these literary stories to drop into a box at each post office they read. No watchdog is to be kept over the box, the payment being left to the honor of the readers. The society trusts that it will not only secure its daily literature, but also a fund for the establishment of free libraries.

It is unlucky to save the life of a man in danger of drowning if by so doing the person saving it would lose a lucky limb. It would be well to print the whole correspondence relating to this matter. Fortunately the [illegible] are not frightened at literary fragments at the age of twenty-three. All the allusions to the publication of the letters are considered to have been removed by the recent death of the last surviving second Prince Youssoupoff.

The second volume of the correspondence of George Sand has been issued in Paris. It covers the period from 1808 to 1817. Among the most interesting letters addressed to Emmanuels in 1837 when she was publishing in his paper—the Monde—her Lettres a Marcie. In it, while stating her own opinion upon the question of divorce, she asks her correspondent to his hands for the two letters describing her visit to Mallorca in company with Chopin, in December 1838, and this is a very characteristic one to Marzin:

Writing to Carlyle from Concord on the 20th of November 1848 Emerson invited him to America as follows: "Now as to the welcome that you might come to America it shall become a joyful hope. Come and found a new academy that shall be church and school and Parliament as the true poet's house should be. I dare not say that will has better chance here than in England of winning world wages but it can always live and it can scarce find competition. Indeed indeed, you shall have the contentment to yourself were it only as Crusoe was king. If you cared to read literary lectures our people have that curiosity and the apparatus is very easy to set going. Such prophets you please to erect, you'll at least find no hindrance in the building. A friend of mine and of yours remarked when I expressed the wish that you would come here 'that people were not here, as in England we get invented to organized schools of opinion, but we get a far more convertible audience. If I can think of coming here I would begin again and all particulars of information with the real speed. The whole text of the letter is now for the first appearance in print in the London Athenæum for June 24.

Saghalien Instead of Siberia

London Globe, June 5.

The Novoe Vremya, which is usually well informed in administrative matters, states in a leading article that the Russian government is actively engaged discussing a project for abolishing exile to Siberia. This may seem an untrustworthy rumor to persons unacquainted with Russian progress, but it is in effect, altogether in harmony with the tendency both of the Russian government and people to give over treating Siberia as a huge Botany Bay, and make use of it as a colonial adjunct, like Canada or Australia. Of course a place must still be found for the 30,000 exiles who are deported from European Russia every year, and here the recent annexation of Saghalien comes in handy to play in the North Pacific the role that New Caledonia plays on behalf of the French in the South Pacific ocean. Should the island become overcrowded, as it would very likely be in the course of time unless the stream of exile diminished, a second penal settlement could be formed in the inhospitable wilds of Nova Zembla, where a Russian geographer has recently demonstrated the winters to be not so bad as usually represented. Whether this be so or not or whether Nova Zembla will ever succeed Saghalien, it seems to be tolerably certain that before long the indiscriminate distribution of exiles over the length and breadth of Siberia will undergo a thorough overhauling. At present, exiles are shot over the Urals into Asia in a most promiscuous manner, scarcely a third remaining in the districts assigned to them and a large proportion wandering about the country like vagrants. In a word, in most essentials the deportation of non political convicts is simply a sort of enforced colonization, with a sufficient grant from the state to keep the exile from actual starvation. This intrusion of a native criminal element has always been a grievance to the regular Siberian, and has been unanimously regarded by Russian statesmen as the principal cause of the stunted growth of the country during its 90 years existence as a Russian rule. Now that the Transsiberian railway system is in process of construction and with the vast [illegible] at present confined on the Lena and Amur valleys, the Russian capital may be freed from the incubus of Siberia, or Moscow, the deportation of exiles to Western Siberia at least has become an anomaly, and of the two they would be kept in hand better in the Island Saghalien than in the eastern section of that great appanage of the Russian empire.

Elephants All Cowards

London Field.—

I once had a grand scrimmage with a Burgess. She had mauled my own tusker badly, and ripped the mahout's foot into a jelly, whilst she had caused me to be thrown off, and after mauling two other elephants not badly. She had forced us to retreat for the time, as it got dark, and not an animal would go near her; we had no howdahs. Next morning we found her dead and took her into camp. As an experiment, we had all the tuskers brought to the front. My own tusker, which was badly mauled about the head and jowl, and had its back fearfully cut by the chain ropes, went up to her at once when told and struck the carcass with its trunk and shook by unconcernedly, but none of the other five tuskers would go near her. They were then jammed together and driven forward. They advanced with heads lowered until their tusks ploughed up the ground uttering most pitiful cries. When within a yard or so of the dead tigress, they jerked up their heads, scattering earth upon the body, and notwithstanding the punishment they received from their mahouts, broke away and ran for their lives. It was the most absurd sight I ever saw. The next day, although the place where we were encamped was as bare of vegetation and level as a billiard table, not an elephant would advance alone to drink water or be bathed. The object was not 100 yards off, so the mahouts, holding on to a top of the ear of an elephant, led them in a body down toward the water. Suddenly a young tusker, Jerry, which had been born in captivity and was of a most uncertain temper, trumpeted and bolted, followed by every animal in camp, and it gave us a great deal of trouble to recapture them—one tusker who had wandered upward of fifty miles, not being recovered for a week. There was not the slightest cause for this stampede. It interfered with our sport considerably, but in a few days the elephants appeared to have got over their panic and allowed us to kill gaur buffaloes and other game off them without showing any undue fear. I have always found elephants born in captivity most uncertain in their tempers. They lose all fear of man while, from not being accustomed to wild beasts, they dread them, and are thus useless for sport.

HOW SHE GOT EVEN

A Chicago Maiden Heading off a Commercial Drummer in His Own Fashion

Chicago Times.

Is this seat engaged?" he asked of the prettiest girl in the car and finding it vacant he put his sample box in the rack and tried himself for comfortable enjoyment. "Pardon me," said the girl, coming for him before he could get his coat on, and looking most bewilderingly at him, "I expect miss Stanmore the drummer. He wasn't in the habit of playing it low this kind of a trick and the position of such a delicate little thing is painful to me. Nice weather for traveling, continued the girl, much more than when it was cold. Are you particularly comfortable?" "Oh, yes, thanks," murmured the drummer, "but if he," pointing the girl, cheerfully, "you don't look as if you could be put out very much, would you? Hadn't you rather sit next to the window and have me describe the landscape to you?" "No, please," he muttered, "I—I'm doing well enough."

"Can I buy you some peanuts or a book? Let me do something to make the trip happy. I suppose I slip my arm around your waist." Just lean forward a trifle so I can." "You'll—you'll have to excuse me," gasped the wretched drummer, "I—I don't think you mean it." "You look so tired," she pleaded, "wouldn't you like to rest your head on my shoulder?" "No one will notice. Just rest your head right down and I'll tell you stories." "No—no thanks! I won't trouble." "I'm very comfortable, thank you," and the drummer looked around hopelessly. "Your station is coming out. Let me fix it." "There!" and she arranged it deftly, "at the next station I'll get you a cup of tea and when we arrive at our destination you'll let me call on you?" and she smiled an anxious prayer right up into his countenance. "I think I'll go away and smoke," said the drummer, and hauling down his grip-sack he made for the door knee deep in the grins showered around him by his fellow passengers.

"Strange" murmured the girl to the lady in front of her. "I only did just what he was making ready to do with me, and big and strong as he is, he couldn't stand it. I really think women have stronger stomachs than men, and besides that there isn't any smoking car for them to fly to for refuge. I don't under stand this thing." But she settled back contentedly all the same and at a convention of drummers held in the smoker that morning it was unanimously resolved that her seat was engaged, so far as they were concerned, for the balance of the season.

An Improbable Story

A Paris dispatch quotes the Debats as telling the following story. On the memorable day of the massacre some fifty Arabs, led by a half naked Marabout, carrying a green flag and a saber, ran amuck through the streets of Alexandria. They made a prodigious noise to keep up their courage, for a long time being lucky enough to meet only stray Europeans. These they hacked and slaughtered to their hearts' content. On turning into the Rue du Marche, however, they came upon three Greeks seated at a cafe smoking. Without stopping for a moment to reflect on the odds arrayed against him one of the Greeks quietly put down his nargile and walked up to the Marabout. That worthy at once set up a dismal howl: "Help! help! Children of Islam! to the rescue! They are assassinating us!" On this the Greek snatched the hero's saber out of his hand and struck him with it several times in the face. Having thus shown him the measure of his contempt he ran him through the body before his fifty followers, and in the coolest way returned to his nargile. The Arabs, panic stricken, bolted round the corner, and although after this the three Greeks sat outside the cafe for some hours they were not once molested.

Millais

Quilter in Contemporary Review.

It happened more than 30 years ago that an artist, since become very famous who was a friend of Mr. Millais came to him and announced his intention of giving up painting. He could not sell his work, would not live on his father and was going as a farm pupil. "No," said Millais, "you shan't do anything of this kind. I've saved £400, and you shall draw on it till it's all gone, if necessary, but you must not quit art, you're sure to succeed." The help was accepted frankly and within a year or two the "Light of the World" was one of the results. Mr. Millais power is so surprising and so varied that one never quite knows what to expect from his hand. Never, also, has a man who could paint well so frequently painted badly, and sent calmly [illegible] to exhibitions works at best and third rate quality. This refers more especially to [illegible] portraits of women and fair-haired boys. Of late years [illegible] work has lost the delightful touches of tender and genuine sentiment which first made him famous. It is pitiful to think that the artist who sent a thrill through England a quarter of a century ago by the picture of two lovers standing face to face, should have done nothing for the last ten years but turn out half a dozen good portraits, one good landscape, and half a hundred indifferent likenesses of rich but commonplace people. Pretty as are the little children in mob caps, or with brooms in their hands, (or sitting by the sea shore, as in the last of the series), or the others who represent the daughter of this prince or that commoner, we do grudge to the delineation of these the painter of "The Huguenots," "The Vale of Rest," and "The Autumn Leaves." There was an artist in England who seemed able to touch all our hearts by the tenderness of his sentiment, while he delighted our eyes by the magnificence of his color, and now he has disappeared, and we have in his stead a keen, clever portrait painter, the only relics of whose genius gush out now and then in a vivid bit of character painting, like the portrait of Sir Henry Thompson in this exhibition or the wistful expression of some child model's eyes.

Embalming in Italy

London Lancet.

The principal Italian embalmers keep their special processes a secret, although the chief steps are well known. The process of embalming is stated to consist of five steps. First cold water is injected through the whole circulatory system until it issues quite clear. This may take as long as five hours. Alcohol is then injected for the purpose of abstracting all the water from the body. This is followed up by the injection of either, to dissolve out the fatty matter. This injection is carried on for several hours in thin subjects for two in very fat ones for even as long as ten hours. After this a strong solution of tannin is slowly injected, and full time is allowed for its soaking into all the tissues, this takes from two to five hours. Lastly, the body is exposed for from two to five hours to a current of warm air, which is previously dried by passing it over heated chloride of calcium. The body can then be preserved for any length of time without undergoing change, and is hard as stone.

In the Whole History of Medicine

No preparation has ever performed such marvellous cures, or maintained so wide a reputation, as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which is recognized as the world's remedy for all diseases of the throat and lungs. Its long continued series of wonderful cures in all climates has made it universally known as a safe and reliable agent to employ against ordinary colds which are the forerunners of more serious disorders, it acts speedily and surely, giving relief. Having stood the test of many years' trial, it is daily proving its claim to be the most effectual remedy for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, and consumption. Public speakers and singers find it invaluable in relieving hoarseness and clearing the voice. Mothers should always keep it in the house, as a few doses, in the early stages of croup, whooping cough, or any bronchial affection, will prevent the development of more dangerous symptoms. Those who have once used it will have no other preparation, and will always cure where cure is possible.

INVALIDS AND TOURISTS.

The Seven Lakes Hotel is Now Open.

It is the highest hotel of the kind in the world, and in the highest forest.

The principal lake is eighty feet deep and one mile in diameter. It is the highest in the world, being 11,658 feet above tide water.—[Report of the U. S. Signal Service.

It has the highest ball boats in the world.

The road via Cheyenne canon and Ruxton park to Pike's Peak, about 14,000 feet, is the highest carriage road in the world, and the volcanic center within which are the seven lakes, is the highest and largest in the world. It does not subsist against the latter that it has but one opening.—[Chancellor of the Kansas State University.

Professor Spring says: The scenery is extraordinary, and I do not hesitate to pronounce it the most picturesque and grand in the world
